SPECIFICATIONS

The BLIND modular extraction rail is suitable primarily for aspiration of car exhaust, welding fumes, or fumes of any other kind. The extraction rail has been met with a great success in truck repairing workshops where contamination of the workplace was prevented by the highly mobile flexible hose of the BLIND mobile extraction rail. Installation of an arm on the sliding rail enables the extraction of fumes produced during welding operations or the removal of dusty air. The BLIND is made in robust aluminum sections, and the extraction rail has a variable cross-section depending on the desired air flow rate (BLIND 190 and BLIND 240). The slit on the bottom allows longitudinal movement of the extracting point. The vacuum produced by the exhauster is constant thanks to the presence of two rubber lips fixed in proximity of the slit and thus making the extraction system airtight. The sliding element runs on nylon wheels along a robust rail system inside the extraction channel. The BLIND extraction rail is supplied in standard lengths of 7, 10, 13, and 20 feet, flanged on both sides, which can then be assembled to reach the desired length (which allows the system to be expanded later). Several extracting sliding elements can be easily inserted into the modular rail.
